

Scarlet Security forms incorporated partnership in the Sahtu

Scarlet Security Services is pleased to announce the formation of another northern partnership, with the recent expansion of its corporate family to include Sahtu-Scarlet Security Services Ltd. Sahtu-Scarlet is an incorporated partnership between Scarlet Security, a NWT majority-owned northern business, and Sahtu Security Services Ltd., a 100% Tulita-Dene owned company, operated within the Sahtu region.

The new partnership is also pleased to announce an accumulation of additional security services work having landed a security services contract with a major energy company operating in the Sahtu region.

Pat Doyle, President of Scarlet Security commented “this partnership is a very natural fit with our corporate direction and we are fortunate to be working with yet another group with a great local reputation. With recent contracts awards, this relationship has already become a win-win situation”. He went on to say “what is on the horizon in the Sahtu is very exciting and this partnership will allow us to service the growth that is forecast, while ensuring maximum employment, training and wealth generation for the Sahtu region. This is our third significant northern partnership, and in each case the expertise of both parties has lead to immediate opportunities, and a sustainable local security service model.

Wilfred Lennie of Sahtu Security Services Ltd commented “This partnership allows us to build capacity in our community, and to implement “best-in-class” practices with an experienced northern security partner. His partner Roderick Yallee went on to say that the new partnership is well positioned to share in the financial benefits of exploration and development in the Sahtu Region, and will fittingly become the steward of the safety and security of the activity on Sahtu land.
